

Andy Johnston directs the Glendale Orchestras and the orchestras at five different elementary schools: Wilder, Sequiota, Pershing, Field, and Rountree. This is his twenty-fourth year teaching strings, his seventeenth teaching in public schools, and his twelfth at Glendale. Andy graduated from Oklahoma State University, where he majored in both music education and violin performance. He holds a Master of Music degree in viola performance from Missouri State University, and he has done additional graduate work at Texas Tech University. Andy is also active as a professional violist and violinist, and he taught Applied Viola at MSU in 2006. Andy is a member of the Missouri Music Educators Association where he served as vice-president 2006-2008, the American String Teachers Association where he serves on the state Board of Directors, and the National Speleological Society. He enjoys spending time with his wife Elizabeth, who teaches orchestra at Pershing Middle School and plays violin professionally, and his children Allison (a violinist) and Benjamin (a cellist). Andy enjoys an eclectic array of hobbies and interests, including caving (cave exploration), memorizing the number π (a totally useless pastime), and studying the literary works of J.R.R. Tolkien.
